

Why would the brand that's leading the asymmetrical revolution make a design that's more controllable?

